Kettenbach Dental Launches the VISALYS® BioCeramic Block

Biomimetic Performance for Permanent Restorations

Kettenbach Dental, a leading manufacturer of high-quality dental materials "Made in Germany," presents a true innovation in digital prosthetics with the new VISALYS® BioCeramic Block.

Under the position "mimicking nature," the CAD/CAM blocks from Kettenbach combine the highest aesthetic standards with a natural biomechanical structure – inspired by dentin and enamel. The specially developed high-performance composition of the blocks ensures natural force distribution in the oral cavity and supports long-lasting, stress-free restorations. At the same time, the material's balance of strength and elasticity allows for user-friendly processing – efficient milling, precise results, and minimally invasive treatment.

With the market launch of the VISALYS® BioCeramic Block, the company underscores its role as an innovative driver in the field of modern restorative dentistry.

"Our aim is to provide dental practices and laboratories not just with products, but with real solutions – offering maximum reliability and the material performance of a natural tooth," explains Tabea Fey, Managing Director of Kettenbach Dental. "With the new VISALYS® BioCeramic Block, we are setting a milestone in digital dentistry."

"We asked ourselves what it takes to make a perfect imitation of nature possible in dentistry. In doing so, we worked on replicating the natural biomechanics and appearance of natural teeth," says Katrin Schröder, Senior Global Product Manager, Digital Restoration.

The market launch of the VISALYS® BioCeramic Block in the USA is in May 2026.
